Russian Conference on Neutron Scattering in Condensed Matter NSCM-2018 continues the more than half a century tradition of holding RNIKS-meetings, which gather scientists every two years, and discuss practically all problems solved by neutron scattering.

Venue:

St. Petersburg, Petergof,

Ulyanovskaya st., 1.

St. Petersburg State University,

Faculty of Physics.

The purpose of the conference is to summarize the scientific results of neutron research conducted in recent years, to discuss current problems solved by neutron methods, to coordinate scientific topics in accordance with the capabilities of different mega-installations and scientific teams working around them. Russian and foreign scientists will present their reports on a number of directions, in which they will report on the successes and problems of Russian neutron centers.

Themes:

- Crystal structures and elementary excitations;
- Magnetic structures and interactions;
- Magnetism and polarized neutrons;
- Strongly correlated electronic systems;
- Non-crystalline materials, polymers and liquids;
- Biological systems;
- Layered structures, thin films and surfaces;
- Fundamental interactions and properties of a neutron;
- Neutron sources;
- Instruments and methods of neutron experiment;
- Functional materials, materials science and applied research (energy, environment, geophysics, cultural heritage);
- Neutron Scattering and Complementary Experimental Techniques;
- Theoretical aspects of neutron scattering.

History Peterhof

Building date: 1714 - 1723

Architects: I. Braunstein, J.B. Le Blond, N. Miketti, F. Rastrelli, A.N. Voronikhin, A.I. Stackenschneider.

After 200 years of serving as a grand summer residence of the emperors, Peterhof is inextricably connected with the Russian history. The seaside paradise was built, as a grandiose triumphal memorial glorifying the grandeur of Russia, in conquering the much needed and desired access to the Baltic Sea, during the Great Northern War.

The first documented record of Peterhof refers to the year 1705, when it was called in the Dutch manner as "Piterhof" - "Peter's courtyard".

The construction of the residence, that was as beautiful and splendid as the best residences of European monarchy, including the French Versailles, commenced in 1714.

The architecture and decor of Peterhof reflects all the artistic styles of the past and the personal tastes and preferences of every Russian monarch.
